2023 Annual Report
Introduction
We Are Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts bring their dreams to life and work together to build a better world. Through programs from coast to coast, Girl Scouts of all backgrounds and abilities can be unapologetically themselves as they discover their strengths and rise to meet new challenges—whether they want to climb to the top of a tree or the top of their class, lace up their boots for a hike or advocate for climate justice, or make their first best friends. Backed by adult volunteers, mentors, and millions of alums, Girl Scouts lead the way as they find their voices and make changes that affect the issues most important to them. To join us, volunteer, reconnect, or donate, visit girlscouts.org.

The Girl Scout Promise

On my honor, I will try:
To serve God* and my country,
To help people at all times,
And to live by the Girl Scout Law.

*Members may substitute for the word God in accordance with their own spiritual beliefs.

The Girl Scout Law

I will do my best to be honest and fair,
friendly and helpful,
considerate and caring, courageous and strong, and responsible for what I say and do, and to respect myself and others, respect authority,
use resources wisely,
make the world a better place, and be a sister to every Girl Scout.
A Letter from the National President and Chief Executive Officer

Girl Scouts builds girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place—and this mission is as important as ever. The Girl Scouts we serve are ambitious, determined, resilient, and strong, and every decision we make is focused on providing them with impactful Girl Scout experiences that enable them to thrive in today’s world.

During a time when girls are facing innumerable challenges tied to their mental health and social development, Girl Scouts provides the space where they can make meaningful connections, discover new passions, engage with life-changing mentors and role models, and understand the power they have to achieve their dreams.

Our world is rapidly changing, and our young people need Girl Scouts. Where else can girls engage in such a vast variety of opportunities? With Girl Scouts, they explore the outdoors, give back through community service, collaborate with a team to solve problems, and build skills in everything from cybersecurity, space science, and app development to entrepreneurship, public speaking, and budgeting.

Thanks to the hard work of staff across our organization, the passion and commitment of our incredible Girl Scout volunteers, and the enduring dedication of supporters like you, Girl Scouts develop the skills they need to lead today and in the future.

Thank you for the time, treasure, and heart you dedicate to supporting Girl Scouts. We are proud to partner with you to chart our way forward, increase our reach and impact, and strengthen our ability to deliver on our mission.

Yours in Girl Scouting,

Noorain F. Khan

2023 Highlights
Programming

Girl Scouts love learning new things, collaborating on projects, and building their skills and confidence in a wide variety of fields. In 2023, we continued to develop and launch innovative and relevant programming for girls centered on keeping them engaged in Girl Scouting, getting them outdoors, offering mental health and wellness support, and providing opportunities for them to flex their entrepreneurial muscles and explore their interest in STEM subjects.

Outdoors

Girl Scouts of the USA (GSUSA) delivered a suite of outdoor experiences and resources to ensure that every Girl Scout has opportunities to benefit from the great outdoors. The Girl Scout Tree Promise continued to be a favorite among Girl Scouts who want to make an environmental difference, with over 250,000 trees planted. They engaged in nearly one million supporting actions to address climate change, and tens of thousands of Girl Scouts took the Girl Scouts Love the Outdoors Challenge. By completing a variety of fun outdoor activities, they explored local outdoor spaces in parks, on trails, and on urban trailways.

1M actions to address climate change were taken through Girl Scout Tree Promise activities.
On September 9 and 10, 2023, approximately 50,000 Girl Scouts and their families and friends gathered in state parks across the country to participate in the fifth annual Girl Scouts Love State Parks celebration. More than 780 events were held in 713 state parks in 50 states across the country, with girls in 107 Girl Scout councils participating.

40% of Girl Scouts went on overnight camping trips.

Camp 2023

Summer 2023 represented the first year of a post-COVID camp experience for many Girl Scout councils.

In July 2023, and in partnership with the University of Utah, GSUSA published the inclusion study, Making Summer Camp Inclusive: Staff Perspectives from Two National Youth-Serving Organizations. The goal was to assess the current state of diversity, equity, inclusion, and racial justice (DEIRJ) values in overnight camps to help us build a culture of inclusion by better understanding and addressing the barriers to accessibility and inclusion that BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and people of color), LGBTQ+, low-income, and disabled campers may experience at Girl Scout camps.

Results suggest that many inclusion strategies are undertaken at the camp level, with staff responding to youth needs and working to create accepting, supportive, identity-safe spaces for those who attend camp. A commitment to DEIRJ across the organization is necessary for effective change, ideally with top-down and bottom-up DEIRJ efforts working together—that is, camp staff offering feedback and insights and leadership delivering on resources, guidance, and organizational continuity in an ongoing process of institutional change.

2023 Highlights

Mental Wellness

Building on the success of our first Mental Wellness patch—Resilient. Ready. Strong.—launched in 2021, we started a new partnership with funder HCA Healthcare and the National Alliance on Mental Illness...
(NAMI) to release three more Mental Wellness patches that we launched at the 2023 Girl Scout Convention to great enthusiasm. GSUSA hosted two panel discussions in the Volunteer Retreat to answer volunteer questions and provide support, with panelists from GSUSA, Girl Scouts of Colorado, NAMI, and HCA Healthcare. These patches—designed for Juniors, Cadettes, and Seniors/Ambassadors—follow the Collaboration Guide we issued in 2022 with NAMI to support Girl Scout councils and local NAMI state-level organizations and local affiliates to encourage local partnerships and support for mental health-related programming, resources, and support.

In 2023, Girl Scouts’ instructors trained nearly 2,000 council staff, volunteers, and parents in Youth Mental Health First Aid, teaching them to support adolescents (12–18) who might be experiencing mental health issues, crises, and challenges with addictions.

Through our partnership with the National Council for Mental Wellbeing, Girl Scouts continues to train Youth Mental Health First Aid (YMHFA) Instructors and increase our capacity to provide trainings to Girl Scout volunteers and council staff.

Maker Badges

GSUSA launched nine Maker badges in July 2023, including three badges with age-appropriate activities for Daisies, Brownies, and Juniors: Art and Design, Craft and Tinker, and Create and Innovate. The badges replace existing badges for Brownies and Juniors and add in new badges for Daisies. Piloted by close to 100 troops, these new badges allow Girl Scouts to explore any medium from drawing, pottery, and woodwork to digital design and 3D printing. This keeps the badges girl-led, offers opportunities for local partnerships, and is helpful for multi-level troops. It also means that badgework done on subjects like pottery, drawing, or jewelry making can now be earned for any K–5 level!

Through our partnership with the National Council for Mental Wellbeing, Girl Scouts continues to train Youth Mental Health First Aid (YMHFA) Instructors and increase our capacity to provide trainings to Girl Scout volunteers and council staff.
Global Girl Leadership

As a global organization, Girl Scouts provides opportunities for girls to learn, grow, and take action in their local and global communities—and connect to their global sisterhood around the world. GSUSA and councils continue to advocate for global Girl Scouting opportunities for girls, alum, and adults.

Girls Speak Out

Each year, Girl Scouts of the USA participates in the annual Girls Speak Out event in celebration of International Day of the Girl at the United Nations. It provides an opportunity for girl advocates and activists from around the world to bring their issues and concerns to policymakers and the UN community.

The 2022 event, held on the tenth anniversary of International Day of the Girl, was centered on the theme, “mind the gap—Girls Rights Now!” The event featured unscripted and authentic dialogue between policymakers, girl allies, and girl leaders around progress for girls’ rights.

87% of Girl Scout alums believe they have been successful in achieving their goals in life, versus 80% of non-Girl Scouts.

56% of today’s female NASA astronauts are Girl Scout alums.

64% of women senators in the U.S. Senate are Girl Scout or Girl Guide alums.
2023 Highlights

GSUSA delegates had the opportunity to connect with members of the global sisterhood, discuss the current direction of WAGGGS, and elect a new WAGGGS World Board.

Latin American Gathering
In June 2023, GSUSA participated in the Latin American Gathering, hosted by the Western Hemisphere Region of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts (WAGGGS). This gathering brought together young women, ages 18–25, from Latin America to connect and develop their leadership capacity. GSUSA was represented by Gold Award Girl Scout Laura Robert-Rivera from Girl Scouts of Caribe and Girl Scout Alexandra from Girl Scouts San Diego.

WAGGGS World Conference
GSUSA participated in the 38th WAGGGS World Conference that was held in Nicosia, Cyprus, and co-hosted by the Girl Guides of Cyprus.

Travel
2023 was a big year for Girl Scout travel, with more than 50,000 Girl Scouts taking extended trips within the United States and over 9,000 Girl Scouts embarking on international trips, mostly with their troops. The Girl Scout Destinations program also continued, with trips to 14 states, 12 countries, and 4 continents, including the first Destination in at least a decade to Thailand.

In September 2023, we launched a STEM resource to help councils and volunteers successfully leverage community partnerships to provide more access to fun and robust STEM programming. This resource highlighted national partners such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Society of Women Engineers, providing insight into how to leverage these national relationships at the local level.

We launched our 13 newly updated Financial Literacy badges (one for each grade level), replacing the legacy badges created more than ten years ago, as well as several resources to activate our entrepreneurship program, including Camp CEO, Girl Scouts Pitch Day, and the Financial Empowerment Playbook. We developed Daisy bilingual resources—available in English and Spanish in one badge booklet—for Cookie Goal Setter, Money Explorer, My First Cookie Business, My Money Choices, and Toy Business Designer badges. In addition, the Spanish version of the Daisy Cookie Family Entrepreneur Pin is available. These bilingual resources were made possible by FINRA Investor Foundation.

The Girl Scout Cookie Program® is so much more than an exciting annual tradition for cookie lovers—it is the best entrepreneurial program for girls in the world! Through running their cookie businesses, Girl Scouts learn essential life skills like goal setting, decision making, money management, people skills, and business ethics.

1 in 3 women in the United States was a Girl Scout at some point in their lives.
These Cookie Sellers Mean Business

Every year, Girl Scouts across the country flex their entrepreneurial muscles and reach their cookie customers where they are—whether in person or online.

After three years of hard work, 17-year-old Girl Scout Kaela from Anchorage, Alaska, opened her colorful mobile cookie booth for business, providing a new way for cookie lovers to get their favorites. “It used to be a 1970s pull-behind prowler,” Kaela said, “before I scrapped it down to the frame and built it from the ground up.”

In her first year of being a Girl Scout, 8-year-old Liliana from Ellsworth, Maine, broke her state’s record for the most boxes of cookies sold! “My first goal was 502 boxes, then 1,002, and then my mom asked me if I wanted to go bigger and I did,” said Liliana, who sold more than 2,600 boxes!

Girl Scout Daisy Emma ran a total of 41 cookie booths, selling more than 3,600 boxes and becoming the top cookie seller in Eastern Massachusetts. “I love being out in the community and selling Girl Scout Cookies,” Emma said. She donated all of her cookie earnings to a local food pantry—showing the impact a single Girl Scout can have in her community!

Girl Scout Natalie, who posts videos on Instagram, YouTube, and TikTok to engage customers across the U.S., dressed up and did her best Wednesday Addams impression as she channeled the main character in the popular Netflix show Wednesday and performed part of the viral Wednesday Dance holding boxes of cookies—to glowing reviews! “Through the cookie program,” Natalie says, “I learn to manage money, work with people of all personalities, and improve my presentation skills.”
Our Bronze, Silver, and Gold Awards

Over the past year, our Highest Award Girl Scouts—those earning their Gold, Silver, and Bronze Awards—have shown their leadership, possibility thinking, and civic-mindedness to identify problems, create solutions, and make the world and others’ lives better.

Between April 1, 2022, and March 31, 2023, close to 3,200 Girl Scouts earned the Gold Award by tackling pressing issues that their communities face today in the areas of mental and physical health; the environment and sustainability; education; preserving arts, culture, and heritage; and much more.

In total, the 2023 Gold Award class contributed more than 300,000 hours and invested over $2.5 million toward creating not only immediate, positive change, but a lasting impact that will benefit their communities for years to come. And they developed meaningful leadership and life skills along the way—our 2023 Gold Award Girl Scouts say they developed skills in project management (88%), collaboration (79%), confidence and time management (70%), problem-solving (67%), decision-making (64%), and public speaking (60%) that will help them succeed professionally. Meet our talented change-makers at girlscouts.org/goldawardclass.

In 2023, the GSUSA Gold Award Scholarship program awarded $10,000 scholarships to 110 Gold Award Girl Scouts from 109 councils and USAGSO, made possible in part by the Kappa Delta Foundation; GSUSA National Board members; philanthropists Diane Tipton, Robyn Ratcliffe Manzini, and Aldo Manzini; and funds from Girls Scouts of the USA. We are committed to growing the scholarship program and believe the newly created National Gold Award Scholarship Fund, approved by delegates at the 56th National Convention Session in July 2023, will strengthen the program and give us additional flexibility to adjust value and/or the total number of awards in the future. For the near-term we have committed to awarding one $5,000 scholarship to a Gold Award Girl Scout from each council and USAGSO in 2024 and 2025 (up to 112 scholarships per year). Learn more at girlscouts.org/goldawardscholarship.

In addition to Gold Award Girl Scouts, nearly 50,000 Girl Scouts earned their Bronze and Silver Awards—the highest awards Juniors and Cadettes can earn, respectively—completing service-learning projects that reflect an understanding of issues in their communities. To strengthen our organization-wide approach to the Silver Award, we launched new resources that included updated guides and forms to standardize the experience for Cadettes, volunteers, and councils. We look forward to tackling the Bronze Award in the near-term.

Girl Scouts earn their Bronze and Silver Awards, investing more than 1 million hours into making the world a better place.
Gold Award Girl Scouts
Breaking Barriers and Making the World a Better Place

The 2023 class of Gold Award Girl Scouts tackled complex issues ranging from food insecurity and water quality to education access, mental health, and racialized violence—and all of them made a positive and sustainable impact!

“My Gold Award project had a more profound impact on me than I expected. I learned—and practiced—two valuable things about myself. The first is that by balancing humility and openness with self-confidence, I can effectively lead a strong team while learning and contributing. Finally, I learned that I’m good at managing team dynamics, at getting people to communicate and work together, and at “translating” between different people when necessary. Learning that I am able to learn while leading and help teams accomplish goals are lessons that will be valuable no matter I do in the future.”

Allison
Girl Scouts of Central Maryland
Took action to promote conservation

As part of her project dedicated to improving garden infrastructure at the Maryland Zoo’s garden, Allison led a team through the construction and installation of a composting bin, a compost sifter, and a permanent, eco-friendly roof over the prep work and storage area. Her project doubled the zoo’s composting capacity, increased the zoo’s ability to provide sustainability education to the public, and improved the volunteer experience for years to come.
“As a Girl Scout, I made a commitment ‘to be responsible for what I say and do, respect myself and others, be courageous and strong, make the world a better place, and be a sister to every Girl Scout.’ It is my hope that my program inspired another young girl or community member to reach for new heights and build a better future for themselves and their family without fear or hesitation. This experience has taught me that when you commit to helping others it not only changes you ... it changes the world!”

Ameilia
Girl Scouts of Central Illinois
Took action to stop violence against the AAPI community

Ameilia chose to address the lingering xenophobia against the Asian American and Pacific Islander community that came as a result of COVID. Her educational campaign and workshops were aimed toward raising awareness around the issue and the need for cultural sensitivity programs.

Calcea
Girl Scouts Louisiana East
Took action to encourage civic participation among Black women

Calcea’s project focused on educating Black women about the power of voting and providing easy access to voter registration. She created a presentation that explained the major political parties, why voting is important, and how voting amplifies one’s voice. She also created a QR code that links to the voter registration system. Her presentation was incorporated into the civics curriculum at her all-girl high school.

“The process of completing my Gold Award emboldened me. It made me feel even more confident about my abilities. I strengthened my ability to give an empowering speech and address crowds with confidence and ease. I learned that people really do want to listen to what I have to say and genuinely want to know what I have to bring to the table.”
As part of her project to address the climate crisis, its disproportionate effects on impoverished communities, and the urgency for action, Isabella developed a workshop to train young people in marginalized communities about the issues of climate change and how to create eco-clubs in their schools and communities to increase climate change education and action. She developed a handbook for further dissemination, and a coalition of eco-clubs formed out of these workshops.

“Issabella
Girl Scouts San Diego
Took action to educate about climate change and environmental justice

“The work of creating art-integrated projects for the Coloring Confidence program was a challenging yet rewarding feat that showed me that my tenacity is boundless … My ultimate goal is to have a career in Educational Policy where I collaborate with others to reform the educational system.”

As someone who struggled to fit a mold with dyslexia, Julia decided to help students with the same condition by tailoring curriculums to fit their learning styles. Working directly with students in three different New Jersey school districts, she developed “Coloring Confidence,” an in-person and online program that helps third- and fourth-grade students understand Language Arts and Social Studies lessons through art projects. She also developed a website, coloringconference.com, that contains resources for parents and educators.

“My Gold Award project has helped me develop strong organizational and project management skills. From planning and coordinating the project to managing volunteers, resources, and timelines, I learned how to effectively execute a complex initiative from start to finish. This experience has enhanced my ability to set goals, create action plans, and adapt to unexpected challenges, which are essential skills in both my personal and professional life.”
2023 Highlights

Laura
Girl Scouts of South Carolina, Mountains to Midlands
Took action to help middle and high school students understand mental health.

Laura created a nonprofit organization called Teens4hope for middle and high schoolers to help them understand mental illnesses, including a curriculum that would teach kids the importance of and how to use the National Crisis and Suicide Prevention Lifeline number 988. This teaching program consists of a 43-page presentation, a glossary, three games, and a two-page teacher form.

“Through my Gold Award project, I developed a deeper understanding of myself and discovered a clearer path to direct my undergraduate education. I was able to discover and strengthen my adaptability, organization, confidence, and public speaking skills—all of which have shaped me into a better leader. I also discovered something that I am truly passionate about which will impact me for years to come.”

Katelyn
Girl Scouts of Orange County
Took action to support and celebrate Cambodian culture.

After visiting Cambodia, Katelyn dedicated her project to the preservation of the nation’s customs by establishing the Cambodian Revival of Arts, Folklore, and Traditions (CRAFT). She published “Khmerical,” a collection of Cambodian folktales for children, whose proceeds allowed her to donate books and school supplies to 900 elementary school students in Cambodia’s rural countryside. CRAFT also partnered with several branches of the Orange County YMCA and Pretend City Children’s Museum to host live story times and educate youths about important facets of Cambodian culture.

“I have applied what I have learned through doing this [project] to my own life, which has helped me through some of my darkest times. I have learned the importance of seeing things that are important to me through to the end. And while this project may be finished, my mission [is] not. It will not end until every person in the nation has learned the importance of 988 and what this valuable resource contains.”

Sadie worked to educate students and school staff in the Little Rock School District on epilepsy and seizure first aid by providing presentations and workshops. She hosted first aid trainings and gave presentations to multiple local audiences to debunk myths and destigmatize the disorder, ultimately working with the governor to create a state proclamation recognizing November as Epilepsy Awareness Month and helping pass a Seizures Safe School Bill.

“My Gold Award has taught me to prioritize what is most important to me, manage my time effectively, persevere, and follow through on my goals, no matter how difficult they may seem. It has taught me networking skills like reaching out to others for help, working with others to find solutions, stepping out of my comfort zone, and taking risks.”

Sadie
Girl Scouts Diamonds of Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas
Took action to support epilepsy awareness

Oluwafunto’s project focused on supporting newcomer English language learners (ELLs) who face a language barrier at school by creating videos and slideshows translated into languages commonly spoken by ELL students in and around Austin, Texas. With the help of translators, a number of important resources—including math lesson videos, information about the roles of school counselors, safety drills practiced at school, and steps for accessing the school’s online portal—were developed and translated into several languages commonly spoken by ELL students in the area.

Oluwafunto
Girl Scouts of Central Texas
Took action to address literacy and accessible education

“Before my Gold Award project, I often thought I couldn’t lead a project. Instead, I preferred to help individuals or organizations with their projects rather than start one of my own. My Gold Award project improved my ability to manage time, solve problems, and collaborate with others. And the skills I gained are helping me now in college.”

Oluwafunto
Girl Scouts of Central Texas
Took action to address literacy and accessible education
Simran
Girl Scouts of California’s Central Coast
Took action to combat poverty and food insecurity

Simran recognized that one in six people in her community lived below the poverty line, so for her project she created a permanent food pantry for individuals in her community to fight food scarcity. She developed partnerships with local grocery stores, food banks, and other organizations, and thanks to her vision and leadership, more than 1,000 fewer local families suffer from food insecurity each month.

“I’ve become deeply passionate about helping others. A part of me will always be an introvert, but I now see the value in speaking up. My skin has grown thicker, and I’m less sensitive to people’s dismissive comments. I now view my failures as stepping stones rather than rocks that weigh me down.”
2023 Highlights

Girl Scout DreamLabs

Girl Scout DreamLabs offer modern and engaging spaces that reflect the contemporary tastes of today’s girls. They create a showcase for Girl Scouts’ program offerings, increase staff engagement with the mission, improve access to council staff for volunteers and troop leaders, and offer areas for troop meetings, volunteer trainings, and program activities. Programs are designed to inspire imagination, encourage risk-taking, and ensure girls can explore immersive, hands-on learning in a supportive environment. Girl Scouts and troop leaders alike can explore, connect, and engage with subject matter experts in leadership, entrepreneurship, STEM, and outdoor adventures.

Girl Scout DreamLabs increase connectivity to members and communities, provide visibility year-round, and are purposely co-located with high-traffic, family-oriented businesses for ease of member access. Girls who are not yet Girl Scouts and may not be familiar with all we do can dip their toes in and discover all the incredible opportunities and experiences they can have access to in Girl Scouting.

The first Girl Scout DreamLab opened on March 12, 2023, in Denver, Colorado (Girl Scouts of Colorado). The grand opening was picked up by 424 media outlets, garnering more than 250 million impressions, including national press outlets Fast Company and Bloomberg. Two additional Girl Scout DreamLabs opened in 2023 in Gonzales, Louisiana (Girl Scouts Louisiana East), and North Brunswick, New Jersey (Girl Scouts of Central and Southern New Jersey). Two additional locations are under construction in Omaha, Nebraska (Girl Scouts Spirit of Nebraska), and Birmingham, Alabama (Girl Scouts of North Central Alabama), and Girl Scouts of Historic Georgia is underway on converting an existing property into a Girl Scout DreamLab as well. All three have a summer 2024 expected opening date.

Girl Scout DreamLabs are for the whole community, and we are so energized by the national plans we have for them and the positive impact they will have throughout communities across the country. They represent an exciting new avenue for delivering on our mission.

The grand opening of the first Girl Scout DreamLab garnered more than 250 million media impressions, including national press outlets.
Volunteers are the lifeblood of Girl Scouts, bringing the Girl Scout experience to life in their communities and ensuring girls are instilled with the courage, confidence, and character to meet any challenge! Whether as troop leaders, service unit leaders, or episodic volunteers, they serve as inspirational role models and mentors—championing, challenging, encouraging, and inspiring Girl Scouts to set and achieve new goals, form lasting bonds of friendship, and become visionary leaders who achieve incredible things.

We asked our volunteers what they love most about volunteering with Girl Scouts, and the answers we got were so inspiring! Here are some of our favorites:

“I think it is my 22nd year volunteering. I have been director for about half of that time!! Love it. One of the unit volunteers made this for me. It has all camp themes on it!”

Kathy
“Watching [Girl Scouts] volunteering and working along with them to make the world a better place is everything to me. To see their confidence and self worth grow over the years is the ultimate reward as a leader. I know my girls will do great things because they already are doing them everyday.”

Jillian

“It is moments like these that make it worth all the hard work ... In general, I love when I see my girls around and they always greet me with a smile and a hug even when they’re Cadettes.”

Desiree
“My Girl Scouts earned their Silver Award by helping a community partner in renovating the children’s room that is used for family visitation for kids removed from their homes and placed in custody of another guardian.

My girls made me so proud and showed me why I do what I do as a volunteer and how important it is to believe and support our girls in their dreams/goals.”

Melda

“My second grade Brownies were learning archery at Camp Butterfly, Missouri. One girl was in tears because she was afraid of trying. All the other girls encouraged her and supported her efforts enough that she got a bullseye that day.

The smile on her face lit up for DAYS. That’s when I learned that Girl Scouts will do amazing things for my girls.”

Angie
Public Affairs

GSUSA continued to identify key opportunities for advocacy, cultivate relationships with priority stakeholders in the federal government and nonprofit sector, and leverage participation in policymaking discussions to advance Girl Scouts’ visibility, relevance, and leadership.

Below are highlights of work conducted to support our organization and position Girl Scouts as a committed partner, thought leader, and trusted resource with external audiences.

2023 Highlights

We partnered with NASA to bring Girl Scouts to the Artemis 1 Mission launch on November 16, 2022, at Kennedy Space Center in Florida, to witness the rocket lift off carrying 90 Space Science badges.

In its second year, the Girl Scouts of Citrus Council’s American Rocketry Team qualified for the 2023 National Finals of the National Rocketry Challenge in Virginia, sponsored by the American Aerospace Institute—and made it to the finals!

50% of women governors are Girl Scout alums.
Highlights of our work to elevate Girl Scouts among Members of Congress include:

- Expanding Troop Capitol Hill to include more than two dozen Members of Congress and strengthening relationships with our eight bipartisan, bicameral co-chairs.
- Establishing strong collaborative relationships with the Members of the Senate and House “Women in STEM” Caucuses.
- Hosting Members of Congress and staff from the “Women in STEM” Caucuses to a STEM Experience Fair with Gold Award Girl Scouts and hands-on STEM badge activities in June 2023.
- Introducing resolutions in both the U.S. House and Senate commemorating Girl Scouts’ 111th anniversary.

48% of women in the 118th Congress are Girl Scout alums.
Diversity, equity, inclusion, and racial justice (DEIRJ) values are central to Girl Scouts’ mission. 2023 marked a year of significant progress toward our goal of becoming a relevant and sustainable organization that has removed systemic barriers of participation so that every girl, Girl Scout, and their family feels central to the organization and its mission.

A major advancement was marked at the 2023 National Council Session, where the proposal to adopt diversity, pluralism, and anti-racism language into the Girl Scout Constitution passed by an overwhelming majority. This action was catalyzed by our 2020 anti-racism pledge, which supports our goal to be a welcoming organization where every Girl Scout feels they belong, feels heard, and has the support they need. To determine how best to plan and make progress in this work, GSUSA engaged an independent third-party partner to conduct an organization-wide DEIRJ audit to understand our current state of racial inclusivity.

The goal was to provide an external assessment of how the principles and practices of DEIRJ are reflected in our organization so that we can have clarity on the landscape and where the strengths and gaps are and efficiently address our policies, programs, people engagement, and communications to meet the charge of our collective pledge.

Girl Scouts advances diversity, pluralism, and anti-racism and actively identifies and opposes racism by removing systemic barriers to participation in our organization and in the communities in which we live.
The findings suggest that the needs, interests, and priorities of Black, Indigenous, and other Girl Scouts of color, as well as potential BIPOC girl members, have not always been the first or the central factor when making organizational decisions. And as long as these needs, interests, and priorities appear to be at the periphery of Girl Scouting, full and sustained participation from members of these communities will not be realized. This includes not only our Girl Scouts and volunteers, but also the composition of our boards and the selection and development of our leaders and staff.

Recommendations

The audit report recommended three short-term areas we have been focusing on, rooting all of it in strong communications that support simple and clear language around racial inclusivity, are clear about core values, and support development of a transparent process for embracing culture guidelines:

Content and Programming

Due to uncertainty about what matters to those who identify as BIPOC and how they wish to be served, it is critical that we hear from these communities directly about what centering inclusion and belonging means to them and then rethink how they experience our core programming. This is key when thinking about how diverse groups experience Girl Scouting from locale to locale.

Staff and Leadership

The audit underscored the need to work on our culture, and part of creating a culture that thrives is ensuring that we are inclusive. GSUSA has started working on a cultural blueprint with guiding values that center on mental health, race, reducing trauma, and creating accountability measures in hiring, engagement, and development.

Policies and Procedures

It is recommended that we clarify our core values and align them with DEIRJ principles. This will be the foundation for determining the outcomes we want and the tools that help achieve them.

To continue building on this work, we are using these recommendations to inform our path forward. We will strive to ensure our membership reflects the cultural diversity of the U.S., that girls of color have a long tenure with Girl Scouts with increased programmatic engagement, and that our governing bodies reflect the spectrum of diversity of this country.
In July 2023, nearly ten thousand Girl Scouts, volunteers, and supporters gathered in Lake Buena Vista, Florida, for an unforgettable experience at the 2023 Girl Scout Convention. It was a week of excitement, inspiration, and innovation as we came together to celebrate the phenomenal power of Girl Scouts!

The week kicked off with inspiring speakers and lively discussions at the 56th National Council Session (NCS)—our triennial business meeting where delegates from every Girl Scout council across the nation and USA Girl Scouts Overseas elected new national leaders and discussed, debated, and voted on important issues that set the stage for growth and transformation within the Girl Scout organization in the next triennium and beyond.

We welcomed Noorain F. Khan as National Board President and a diverse 30-member National Board of Directors that will steward the Girl Scout organization through the next three years. They will manage governance, legal, and fiduciary responsibilities while ensuring our organization's continued ability to deliver on our mission of building girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place.

NCS was followed by our electric girl event, Phenom By Girl Scouts, which featured an impressive array of inspirational performers and speakers—from best-selling author and Gold Award Girl Scout Erika Kendrick to soon-to-be two-time basketball Hall of Famer Nancy Lieberman, General Motors engineer and GSUSA National Board member Telva McGruder, and STEM entrepreneur and former NASA rocket scientist Aisha Bowe.

Phenom By Girl Scouts also included the Hall of Experiences, where 110 exhibitors offered troops, girls, families, volunteers, visitors, and staff fun, informational, and hands-on activities in everything from water conservation and sustainability to space travel, robotics, automotive engineering, mental wellness, financial literacy and planning, civic education, ceramics, and bee farming!

Convention 2023 was an inspiring gathering of Girl Scouts from across the country and the world—and an exciting opportunity for thousands of Girl Scouts, family members, volunteers, and supporters to connect, create, make new discoveries—and, together, experience the true, life-changing magic of Girl Scouting.
Philanthropy

In 2023, GSUSA focused on increasing engagement and support for the Girl Scout organization through stewardship of institutional and individual partnerships, and we generated a donor pool that is committed to increasing Girl Scouts’ reach and impact. Through our work together, we provided innovative opportunities for girls, troop leaders, and volunteers to have fun, cultivate lasting friendships, and experience memorable learning moments as they move through their Girl Scout journeys.

This year, the fundraising team saw great success in working toward an $18 million fundraising goal. Important highlights include:

• A $1 million anonymous gift in support of Girl Scouts’ Mental Wellness Initiative. This gift has enabled us to equip volunteers, parents, and Girl Scouts with the tools they need to thrive. This is the second gift made by this donor in support of our organization.

• Planet Oat, a National Cookie Sponsor, kicked off the 2023 cookie season with the highest launch impression total on record, garnering over 4.4 billion impressions.

• DHL emerged from an effective collaboration with council partners, growing a local relationship into a national seven-figure partnership.

• The Lilly Endowment, a first-of-its-kind partnership between GSUSA and six Indiana councils, is a $15 million grant that is poised to change the lives of Indiana Girl Scouts.

In July 2023, Girl Scouts from across our organization convened in Lake Buena Vista, Florida, for our triennial National Council Session and convention. The public-facing portion of this event, Phenom By Girl Scouts, celebrated the power, strength, and creativity of all girls as we gathered close to ten thousand Girl Scouts, volunteers, council staff, and fundraising partners from around the country. We secured almost $3 million in sponsorships, the largest convention funding support in Girl Scouts’ history.

Planned Gifts also generated revenue (in excess of $1.6 million), for the Girl Scout organization through generous bequests, Charitable Gift Annuities, and Trusts from alums, parents, volunteers, board members, and staff. Donors’ legacies ensure Girl Scouts will continue to deliver on our mission for generations to come.
We deeply appreciate the following* individual, corporate, and foundation partners’ investments in girls and the continued support that enable every girl to thrive and make a difference in the world:
